Current Responsibility

Bryce Platt is a clinical specialist with the Seattle Health Practice of Milliman. He joined the firm in early 2023.

Professional Work Experience

Bryce is a licensed pharmacist specializing in managed care through population health and performance improvement strategies. His expertise focuses on using patient data to track performance and drive strategy, evaluating opportunities for tactical improvement in healthcare models, and working with healthcare startups to navigate and take on financial risk in the US healthcare system through knowledge of the financial relationships across systems.

Some examples of past projects:

- Designed and built analytics dashboards to track and predict health plan costs and utilization to drive targeted cost reduction, without sacrificing quality
- Led Medicare Advantage/Part D population health programs that have improved adherence to medications by over 20% in proportion of days covered (PDC)
- Supported independent reviews of healthcare products to quantify their impact and recommend opportunities for improvement from a clinical and financial perspective
- Created and updated pharmacy utilization benchmarks
- Directed the enrollment and implementation of nationwide Center for Disease Control programs utilizing independent pharmacies, including rural areas
